Texas to entertain Bonnie

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Hurricane Bonnie—the first tropical storm of the 1986 season to form in or enter into the Gulf of Mexico—was apparently headed for Texas late Wednesday.

Weather reports late Wednesday indicated the storm, with sustained winds of 75 miles per hour, was located 180 miles southeast of Galveston and moving west-northwest at 10 miles per hour.

The area between Morgan City, La. and Freeport, Texas was under a hurricane warning and the hurricane watch area Wednesday included coastline from the mouth of the Mississippi River to Port O'Connor, Texas.

Latest coordinates place the hurricane at 27.9 north latitude and 92.4 west longitude.

The hurricane is expected to hit the Texas coastline before noon Thursday.

With weather reports indicating the hurricane will probably not hit land anywhere near Hancock County, Hancock County Civil Defense Office in Bay St. Louis.

Hancock County Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin Wednesday was unavailable for comment.

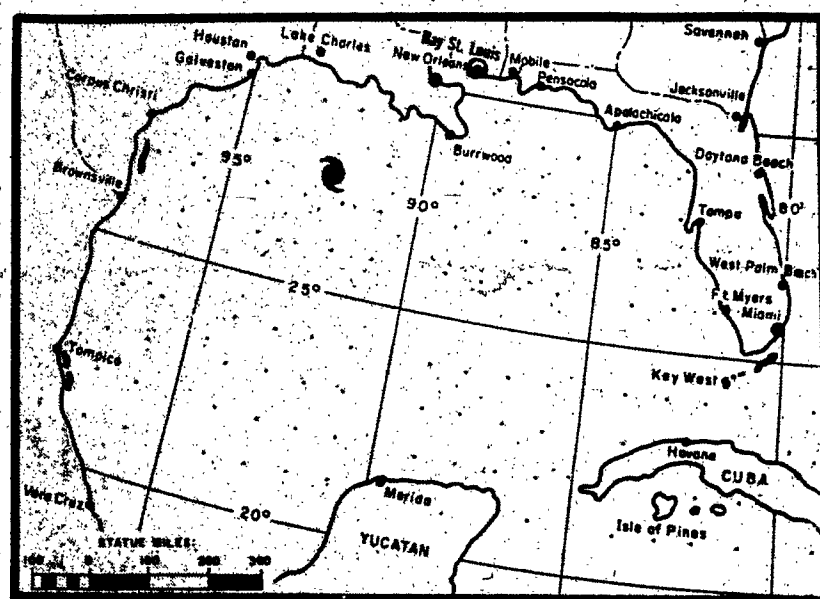

Carbon said there had been no preparations since the area was not under any kind of warning or watch.

"If the hurricane does take a turn back this way then we will begin preparations," she said.

However, the Harrison County Civil Defense reported they were in a state of "prepared readiness" that included making arrangements for shelters to be opened should be needed.

The storm formed approximately 300 miles southeast of Galveston Tuesday and was upgraded from a tropical storm to a hurricane shortly before noon Wednesday.

Space shuttle main engine testing resumes at NSTL

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
An ignition test for an engine formerly flown on the Space Shuttle Columbia is set for Thursday at National Space Technology Laboratories.

This test will be the first shuttle engine test at NSTL by National Aeronautics and Space Administration since a moratorium was placed on the space shuttle program following the explosion of the Challenger in January.

The 1.5 ignition test is tentatively scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

"The ignition test is usually the first test of a shuttle engine to prepare it for longer duration tests," said Lisa Monti, NASA spokesman.

This test is designed to check shuttle engine systems and associated support equipment.

"If everything goes well with the ignition test, a longer duration test will be scheduled in the very near future," Monti said.

The next test will probably be 250 seconds and it will be scheduled following an examination of the data from the ignition test, she added.

Tri-county officials meet to establish Coast council

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
County and city officials from Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties met in Bay St. Louis Tuesday to discuss the establishment of a Gulf Coast Council of Governments.

In a meeting hosted by the Bay St. Louis City officials, representatives from several government bodies along the coast agreed on the need for the council and elected six members to a steering committee.

Bay St. Louis Councilman Lisa Cowand and Hancock County Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise were selected for the committee which will follow-up the various government bodies in getting resolutions adopted to form the council.

Other committee members included Mayor Leroy Urie of Gulfport, Biloxi Councilman Bob Carroll, Mayor Richard Jackson of Moss Point and Harrison County Supervisor Billy McDonald.

The Biloxi Council has already adopted a resolution in support of the group and Hancock County Supervisor Sam Perniciaro reported he expected the county board to adopt the resolution this week.

A sample resolution circulated stated the intergovernmental council would serve to "strengthen and improve economic development, governmental efficiency, economy of scale in governmental services, regional planning and regional marketing for the citizens of the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

Biloxi Mayor Gerald Blessey said the main objective of the council is

At the meeting District Attorney Cono Caranna urged the officials to support increased cooperation between his office and local law enforcement officials.

Caranna, the guest speaker, said his office had begun working more closely with law enforcement officers including training and coordination of activities.

He invited the concern and ideas of all government officials and plugged the use of computers in all municipalities especially in the police departments.

Represented on the council will also be a member of each county's port authority or commission, planning commission, development commission or foundation, regional planning commission and tourism commission.

All legislators from the three-county area will also serve as non-voting members.

The group's next meeting will be in August. The city of Gulfport will serve as host.

Eligibility raised for Medicaid

Effective July 1, 1986, the Standard of Need for determination of eligibility for AFDC/Medicaid and Medical Assistance will be raised to 50 percent of the 1985 federal poverty level.

The Welfare Board voted unanimously to raise the Standard of Need and it is anticipated that this could add an additional 14,000 children (up to age 18) to Medicaid and an additional 3,250 women, 500 of whom will be pregnant.

For small families there are small increases but for larger families there are sizeable increases. A family of five can now earn $518 (up from $360) plus a $75 work allowance which means they can have an income from a full-time minimum wage job and now receive benefits. Many families who formerly were ineligible for maternity and child health services because of an unemployment check can now receive benefits.

We want to publicly thank four men who rescued our two boys at the beach Monday afternoon—Tim Finch, Ron Bass, Mr. Feigel and another gentleman who fetched the first three.

The boys had floated on rafts past the deep water markers. The first three men snatched up a boat from the beach and paddled out to them with only a board and one swimming pushing the boat from behind. They got the boys turned around and rowed behind them all the way in.

We are so thankful for these four men who cared enough to help strangers.

If they hadn't, we might very well have been two very sad families. Thank you again and God bless you.

Do trailers count as construction?

Bay school board eyes lawsuit to obtain funds for trailers

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board is expected to decide Thursday whether or not the district should sue the city of Bay St. Louis.

The board voted three to one Monday to accept a bid of $196,296 for three double-classroom trailers specifically designed for kindergarten use, with Board Member L.D. Carter opposed to the purchase.

However, Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz said the city can not legally provide funds for the modules.

The city had committed $350,000 to the district for construction of a kindergarten building at Waveland Elementary School.

Frankiewicz, however, said the city's attorneys, Favre, Genin and Scafide, have told him that installation of trailers does not constitute enough construction to be consistent with the city's advertised intent for use of the money.

He said the money would not be available to purchase trailers "under any circumstance."

The mayor explained that advertising intent to use the $350,000 for new construction and then substituting the purchase of trailers would be "a bait and switch" that would undermine the public's confidence in both the school board and the city council.

"We feel if we use it to buy trailers we have misrepresented our intentions to the public," Frankiewicz said.

School Board Attorney Lucien Gex said he interprets the installation of trailers as being enough construction to be consistent with the advertised intent.

Gex recommended that the school board go to court to force the city to release the $350,000 to the school district.

Board Member Cyril Glover's motion to authorize Gex to begin the necessary legal proceedings died for lack of a second.

Gex then told the board that he considers the matter to be a "Mexican standoff" because he believes the funds are legally committed to the school district since there were no objections to the advertised intent.

Board President Betty Diboll said she feels that the problem of whether or not the board should sue the city requires more consideration.

She requested that the matter be placed on the agenda for a special board meeting at 2 p.m. Thursday.

In an informal discussion that followed the meeting, Frankiewicz again stressed his view that the board should attempt to find temporary quarters for either kindergarten or older elementary school students while a permanent building can be constructed.

According to Diboll, District Kindergarten Coordinator James Baldree has looked at several church facilities offered and has found them unsuitable.

One particular facility, St. Rose de Lima School, has been proposed by Frankiewicz a number of times, but board members were told the facility has a heating problem and is already partially occupied by the Head Start Program, which does not leave enough rooms available for kindergarten.

The Thursday meeting was originally planned to allow the board to meet a June 30 deadline for acceptance of the district's amended budget.

In addition, the board may discuss its long-range building plan for the district, Diboll said.

In other business Monday, the board:

—Approved a request by Superintendent J.D. McCullough that the district apply for $60,000 in Educational Finance Commission funds to reroof Bay Junior High School and authorized Architect Fred Wagner to prepare the application;

—Accepted bids for supplies for the 1986-87 school year; and —Tabled a proposal to hire Wagner as architect for the long-range building plan.

Supervisors, council, mayors to eye sand beach resolution

BY DENA BISNETTE

A special session Thursday of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors will include a joint meeting of the supervisors, Bay St. Louis and Waveland mayors and the Hancock County Sand Beach Technical Advisory Council.

The council plans to present the board with a resolution asking for an endorsement for its master plan for repair and development of the county's beachfront.

The plan calls for long-range development. Endorsements will be also be requested from the Waveland Board of Aldermen and Bay St. Louis City Council, according to Advisory Council Member Jeff Taylor.

The resolution calls for the establishment of a sand beach authority, to be organized, supported and appointed by the county and the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Under the proposal, the cities will each be represented by the mayors or their appointees, the county will be represented by three appointees, and each city and supervisor's district will appoint a non-voting ex-officio member from the local business community.

The resolution calls for support of the project with road protection taxes.

Today's meeting will also include two public hearings, both scheduled for 10 a.m.

One of the hearings will be the third held concerning establishment of a Hancock-Harrison County Water Conservation and Protection District.

"At a previous hearing, objectors have stated that the services of such a district could duplicate efforts currently part of a study by US Geological Survey and Pearl River Basin Development District.

The topic for the other hearing is the establishment of a fire protection district for BaySide Park, part of Lakeshore and part of Bayou Phillips, which is the area currently under the jurisdiction of the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department.

Faulty computer prints incorrect tax notices

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Assessor-Tax Collector's Office has corrected a computer program that caused issuance of 5,294 delinquent tax notices to people who had already paid their property taxes.

According to Assessor-Tax Collector Edward Murtagh, about 1,200 people who received the erroneous assessments were mailed apologies for the error on Wednesday and more will be mailed today.

Murtagh said there has been a considerable increase in the amount of traffic through his office since the error occurred and people began receiving the incorrect notices, which were mailed out along with other assessments on property in the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District.

"A lot of people came in person and some of them said it was because they couldn't get through on the phone. All our phones stayed busy," Murtagh said.

"We've also been getting a lot more mail," he added.

"We're sincerely sorry this happened. The main thing we were trying to do by sending out notices was eliminate the hardship on individuals who have not paid their taxes yet."

He added that anyone who received a notice but has already paid the taxes need not notify his office. The payments were noted in the proper records when the program error was corrected.

According to Lee Bennett, head of the reappraisal division, an estimate is expected today from South Mississippi Planning and Development District, where programmers are determining how many of the notices were actually correct and how many were erroneous.

South Mississippi Planning and Development District supplied the program and is assisting in the correction.

"We felt like something was wrong because it was taking our printer so long to run the notices," Bennett said. "We've got a slow printer but it took three days to run those things. We should have caught it."

The computer is supposed to post payments in two files, but taxes paid in January and early February were not posted in both, he explained.

The payments were recorded in one of the files but were not posted in the other, which is a receipt file.

In addition to having the program corrected, Murtagh said he is taking disciplinary action against the computer that caused the whole problem.

He has suspended the guilty machine's coffee break privileges.

EDITORIAL

Trailers waste taxpayers' money

Many residents appear to be startled by the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board's intent to purchase modular units (trailers) for kindergarten classrooms.

A few have expressed, officially and unofficially, their objections to the purchase of trailers at school board meetings.

This newspaper has expressed its objections to the use of trailers as classrooms on many occasions.

We do not agree with Waveland Elementary principal and kindergarten coordinator James D. Baldrée's recommendations for the use of modular classrooms in a letter to school board members on Tuesday who are in support of the use of trailers.

The purchase of trailers is a waste of taxpayers' money. And let's be realistic about it—"temporary" most of the time means "permanent" when applied to classroom trailers.

As the trailers become permanent, how many of our youngsters will be able to count in later years how many times they had to leave their classes during school because of bad weather?

It does not take a very strong wind to damage trailers, and in this area of the Gulf Coast we have our share of windy weather.

Think about the many tornados or wind storms we have every year, and this is not to mention hurricanes.

There should be some alternatives which can be arranged until proper classrooms can be constructed for our youngsters, even if some students in higher grades would have to be relocated until permanent classrooms could be constructed.

Citizen input is desperately needed now, today, at a special 2 p.m. meeting of the school board at the board room in Bay Senior High.

If you as a parent, grandparent or concerned citizen or taxpayer feel trailers should not be used for education, attend the meeting at Bay High. Let the officials know your feelings.

Call some of your friends, too, and get them to attend the meeting.

Dear Sir,

Here is a cheering note for a change.

J. R. Farrell, six-year-old son of Lonnie and Gail Farrell was riding with his dad traveling south down Washington Road Monday morning when J. R. spotted smoke coming from a shed.

He told his dad to stop. They tried

The shed contained very highly combustible material, but thanks to the quick thinking of J. R., the fire was put out before any great damage was done.

Hurray for this six-year-old hero.

Citizens urged to attend crucial Bay school board meeting

June 24, 1986

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

Decisions taken by a bare majority of the Bay-Waveland School District Board of Trustees with regard to the new kindergarten program are rapidly hurtling toward sheer folly.

The board first voted to throw away $28,000 by shelving architectural plans for a permanent kindergarten building.

Then Trustees Cyril Glover, Linda Penrose, and Reginald Robinson voted to spend $125,000 on trailers, although by their own admission, none of the three had done their homework by visiting any of the proposed alternative sites.

Now Trustee Cyril Glover, on the advice of board attorney Lucien Gex, is advocating the ultimate in no-win situations - that the board go to court to sue the City of Bay St. Louis to borrow the money for trailers.

If such a move finds support from other board members, the original problem of where to place the five-year olds in September could be tied up in court for months, and - win, lose, or draw - taxpayers will foot the bill for the fiasco.

It is high time that every alternative solution be thoroughly scrutinized in a non-partisan, unbiased manner by the trustees.

To do otherwise would be to exhibit irresponsibility bordering on contempt for the needs and aspirations of the people of this community.

The school board meets again at 2 p.m. Thursday, June 26. All concerned citizens who are able to attend are urged to do so.

Sincerely,
Peggy Dutton

JACKSON—What does a hardened old reporter who has covered mostly pirouetting politicians and public officials who can tiptoe past a financial crisis without flinching know about ballet?

Well, not much. But when the New York Times called a week or so ago and said they weren't going to be able to send anyone down to cover the III International Ballet Competition here and could I do a couple of stories, I said, why not?

You see, I've been corresponding with the New York Times for over 20 years, but they ordinarily don't expect anything out of me unless it's of political nature, or if somebody of national importance dies.

Actually, it was good for me. It gave me a chance to get caught up in something besides the speculation over when the next special session will be and who's to blame for not slicing up the penny ante money from the highway department.

It also introduced me to politics on an international scale. Unfortunately, politics is not absent even in the world of ballet.

For instance, when the three Soviet dancers arrived here and held what was ludicrously called a press conference, it consisted of putting three young people who didn't look any different from three young Americans, on display while some Soviet bureaucrat answered questions for them.

If President Reagan could cop this routine, maybe he wouldn't make so many faux pas (see, I'm easing into the foreign lingo) so often at his press conferences.

But a startling thing happened when we were all standing around in the hotel suite right after the press conference when one of our very own Mississippi reporters, namely Margaret Henry of the Biloxi Sun-Herald, who can speak Russian, started asking the young Soviets a few questions at close range.

Needless to say, the 21-year-old world class male dancer to whom she directed her question didn't know whether or not to make a grande joute' right of the 15th floor of the Holiday Inn. The young man was plainly stunned, wondering if Ms. Henry was a CIA or a KGB plant.

The added significance was that he is from Kiev, which the world knows is the largest city near Chernobyl. Had the people in Kiev been told what had happened at Chernobyl, Henry asked him in Russian.

"That question is out of line," the 21-year-old shot back. Then, quickly recovering, he added, "They told us everything. Everything is fine now."

For several years I have had a very good shortwave radio from which I get a great deal of enjoyment. I listen to English language broadcasts which are part of the programming in every world capital.

What struck me last week while listening to results from the World Soccer matches in Mexico, and the Wimbledon tennis tournament in London was that the most outstanding international cultural competition being held in the world was taking place right here in Jackson. Yes, Jackson, Mississippi.

Perhaps I have been as guilty as some others in failing to realize the true significance of having the world's most talented young ballet dancers compete in our town every four years since 1979.

I must say that it was a little difficult for the guy on the cultural desk of the New York Times with whom I spoke after filing my story on the ballet competition the other day to also comprehend that one of the world's foremost prestigious ballet competitions wound up in an unlikely place like Mississippi.

That's the sort of phenomenon which sometimes drops from the sky and lands here in our barren region just because there's somebody in our midst with extraordinary connections.

In the case of the International Ballet Competition, it happened because a remarkable woman named Thalia Mara who had come to Jackson to teach ballet knew in the mid-70's that the competition was seeking a host city in the United States.

Why not Jackson, she insisted to her international dance contacts? Mara persuaded enough people with money and influence in Jackson and elsewhere in the state to organize Mississippi Ballet International, Inc., and magically, Jackson's bid as a host city for the 1979 IBC was accepted by the International Theatre Institute which had launched the competition in Varna, Bulgaria in 1964.

The 1979 Jackson competition was a surprising success, even though as Robert Joffrey, the noted figure of ballet in New York says, "We didn't really know then what we had." Again in 1982 Jackson hosted the competition and this time gained valuable exposure from a film jointly produced by ABC and PBS. But in both competitions, the Russians had stayed away.

This time, they decided to compete, and this was the final recognition.

If you are looking for something to do on Saturday morning, you may want to stop by the Junior Auxiliary's Trinket and Treasurer Sale and browse about a bit.

We can recall a letter from one of our subscribers recently complaining about the auto inspection system in our state.

Come July 1, the cost for an inspection will double from $2.50 to $5 due to a measure passed in the 1986 Session of the Mississippi Legislature.

This increase will give the station performing the inspection another $1 for their services. It is hoped this will lead to better auto inspections in our state.

We guess we will have to just wait and see what happens.

On Tuesday of this week one of Bay St. Louis' residents who has been toiling along for a very long time was recognized for her many years of service.

Mrs. Favre was recognized at a Service Awards Day on Tuesday at Mississippi State University along with Retta K. Smith of the College of Veterinary Medicine, both for 40 years of service.

A total of 40 years in one job is a very long time and not too many people accomplish this feat.

Mrs. Favre has seen quite a few County Agents come and go in her years of service to our county.

In her many years as secretary to our County Agent and Extension Service, Mrs. Favre has done one tremendous job.

We wish you many more years, Mrs. Ethel.

Representing the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will be Miss Connally Compretta, and the City of Bay St. Louis will be represented by Miss Dana Favre.

We wish both of our representatives well in the contest for queen, and who knows, we may have a queen from our area crowned Saturday night.

Miss Compretta is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Compretta, and Miss Favre is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Favre, all of Bay St. Louis.

As for the fish, the rodeo has the title of 'World's Largest Fishing Rodeo', and some very large prizes are offered in both fresh and salt water species.

All participants must register before they start fishing for prizes. Individual registration is free.

Those competing for boat prizes must be registered at $5 per boat.

There will be some 25 species of 'big ones' anglers will be trying to catch.

A big item in Hancock County will be the Second Annual Crab Festival on Beach Boulevard and US-90 on July 3-6.

We know it was a fun time last years, and should be the same this year.

This weekend will be the time to start planning for the big Fourth of July weekend next week.

According to Foreman Harmer Spiers, Bush is working on the project under a State Highway Department contract and expects to have the resurfacing completed in about one week if weather conditions remain favorable. Anthony McFarlin, who is overseeing the project for the highway department, said that 1.2

miles of road from the Bay St. Louis bridge to Carroll Avenue are being surfaced with a process called milling. Milling has been in use only two to three years and involves stripping most of the old asphalt covering off the road, leaving a rougher surface to anchor new material and preventing asphalt build-up. Firefighters save Lakeshore home

The cooperative efforts of several fire departments have saved a Lakeshore residence from destruction by a kitchen fire.

Flames from grease that splattered on a kitchen stove in the Lakeshore Road residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Erskine Jr. destroyed the kitchen and caused smoke damage throughout the two-story frame house, but the rest of the building was spared.

Erskine said he was the only person in the house when the fire occurred shortly after 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Erskine said he had attempted to fight the flames himself. He had almost extinguished the blaze when it reignited and he had to call for help from the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department.

Clermont Harbor was backed up under the Hancock County Firefighters Association's mutual assistance agreement by BaySide Park and West Hancock volunteers, the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Fire Departments and deputies from Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

"Thank God for the fire departments, all of them. My house would have gone to the ground if it hadn't been for the fire departments," Erskine said after the fire was extinguished.

"The first ones got here right away," he added.

According to Clermont Harbor Lieutenant Joseph Bourgeois, most of the damage other than the destruction in the kitchen was confined to the inside of the building and resulted from heavy smoke and water used to fight the fire.

The fire never got into the space between the first floor ceiling and the second floor but might have destroyed the house if it had, Bourgeois said.

Neighbors assisted Erskine in removing some of the curtains and other flammable items from the house and used a fan in one of the front windows to help clear smoke from the building.

He was charged with one count of burglary of a business and was released on $5,000 bond.

But the world should also know how perilously close Jackson and Mississippi came to forfeiting its chance to host the 1986 competition.

In the past two IBC's in Jackson, a subsidy from the state was essential to pull it off. The 1985 Legislature appropriated $600,000 for the 1986 competition, to be drawn over two fiscal years.

But after the lawmakers went home in 1985, Gov. Bill Allain vetoed the appropriation.

Faced with disaster, 30 businessmen in Jackson received an urgent request from Mayor Dale Danks Jr. to raise at least $250,000 in contributions. As of last week $300,000 had been raised and the figure was rising.

When the IBC is over next Saturday, a lot of Mississippians will be richer for having pulled off a small miracle. They have a right to feel like somebody.

Trailers waste taxpayers' money

Many residents appear to be startled by the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board's intent to purchase modular units (trailers) for kindergarten classrooms.

A few have expressed, officially and unofficially, their objections to the purchase of trailers at school board meetings.

This newspaper has expressed its objections to the use of trailers as classrooms on many occasions.

We do not agree with Waveland Elementary principal and kindergarten coordinator James D. Baldree's recommendations for the use of modular classrooms in a letter to school board members on Tuesday who are in support of the use of trailers.

The purchase of trailers is a waste of taxpayers' money. And let's be realistic about it—"temporary" most of the time means "permanent" when applied to classroom trailers.

As the trailers become permanent, how many of our youngsters will be able to count in later years how many times they had to leave their classes during school because of bad weather?

It does not take a very strong wind to damage trailers, and in this area of the Gulf Coast we have our share of windy weather.

Think about the many tornados or wind storms we have every year, and this is not to mention hurricanes.

There should be some alternatives which can be arranged until proper classrooms can be constructed for our youngsters, even if some students in higher grades would have to be relocated until permanent classrooms could be constructed.

Citizen input is desperately needed now, today, at a special 2 p.m. meeting of the school board at the board room in Bay Senior High.

HIGHWAY 90 REPAIR—A crew from Bush Construction of Laurel resurfaces one of the eastbound lanes of US-90 Monday. According to Foreman Harmer Spiers, Bush is working on the project under a State Highway Department contract and expects to have the resurfacing completed in about one week if weather conditions remain favorable. Anthony McFarlin, who is overseeing the project for the highway department, said that 1.2

miles of road from the Bay St. Louis bridge to Carroll Avenue are being surfaced with a process called milling. Milling has been in use only two to three years and involves stripping most of the old asphalt covering off the road, leaving a rougher surface to anchor new material and preventing asphalt build-up. Firefighters save Lakeshore home

The cooperative efforts of several fire departments have saved a Lakeshore residence from destruction by a kitchen fire.

Flames from grease that splattered on a kitchen stove in the Lakeshore Road residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Erskine Jr. destroyed the kitchen and caused smoke damage throughout the two-story frame house, but the rest of the building was spared.

Erskine said he was the only person in the house when the fire occurred shortly after 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Erskine said he had attempted to fight the flames himself. He had almost extinguished the blaze when it reignited and he had to call for help from the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department.

Clermont Harbor was backed up under the Hancock County Firefighters Association's mutual assistance agreement by BaySide Park and West Hancock volunteers, the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Fire Departments and deputies from Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

"Thank God for the fire departments, all of them. My house would have gone to the ground if it hadn't been for the fire departments," Erskine said after the fire was extinguished.

"The first ones got here right away," he added.

According to Clermont Harbor Lieutenant Joseph Bourgeois, most of the damage other than the destruction in the kitchen was confined to the inside of the building and resulted from heavy smoke and water used to fight the fire.

The fire never got into the space between the first floor ceiling and the second floor but might have destroyed the house if it had, Bourgeois said.

Neighbors assisted Erskine in removing some of the curtains and other flammable items from the house and used a fan in one of the front windows to help clear smoke from the building.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

But the world should also know how perilously close Jackson and Mississippi came to forfeiting its chance to host the 1986 competition.

In the past two IBC's in Jackson, a subsidy from the state was essential to pull it off. The 1985 Legislature appropriated $600,000 for the 1986 competition, to be drawn over two fiscal years.

But after the lawmakers went home in 1985, Gov. Bill Allain vetoed the appropriation.

Faced with disaster, 30 businessmen in Jackson received an urgent request from Mayor Dale Danks Jr. to raise at least $250,000 in contributions. As of last week $300,000 had been raised and the figure was rising.

When the IBC is over next Saturday, a lot of Mississippians will be richer for having pulled off a small miracle. They have a right to feel like somebody.

Hospital campaign tops $200,000 goal

The Hancock Medical Center Development Program campaign has exceeded its goal of $200,000. The campaign, which began in November, 1985, reached its goal in April, 1986.

Pledges, which will be collected over a three-year period, include cash contributions as well as equipment donations for the new hospital. "We are extremely pleased that we have reached and exceeded our goal of $200,000," said Charles R. Johnson, chairman, Hancock General Hospital Board of Trustees and the development campaign.

"I think the support shown by the hospital employees, physicians and trustee members, who donated $80,000, is an example of the commitment they have toward providing the best health care possible to the residents of Hancock County, and I am pleased with their support."

Individuals, businesses and organizations from throughout Hancock County pledged to the campaign. Donations include equipment for the laboratory from DuPont and for the nursery from Wyeth Laboratories, along with cash pledges of $30,000 each from Borg-Warner Chemicals and Hancock Bank.

The new $11.5 million Hancock Medical Center is scheduled for completion in January, 1987. Located at Drinkwater Road and US-90 in Bay St. Louis, the hospital will have 60 acute care beds, and is designed to provide advanced health care services.

LEISURE

Making Your Middle Years The Best Years

What are the best years of your life? A recent national survey asked this question and a majority of the people—whether 45 or 65—answered that they were living their best years right now!

For the 45 and over generation, fewer family responsibilities and more disposable income mean the freedom to travel and pursue new interests. That's the slant of a new magazine from Family Circle called ACCENT ON LEISURE, premiering March 31st. Here are some ideas from the magazine:

- Take that fantasy vacation. Explore the lush tropical islands of the South Pacific. Take a legendary journey on the Orient Express. Vacation like royalty in Europe; stay in castles in Germany and Ireland or in a magnificent French chateau. Whichever you prefer, you can count on regal accommodations.
- Soak your cares away. Invest in today's most popular luxury for homeowners: hot tubs and lap pools—a relaxing way to re-energize after a stress-filled day.

Lee joins USM Lady Eagle staff

HATTIESBURG—Former Lady Golden Eagle standout Joye Nell Lee has joined the University of Southern Mississippi women's basketball program as an assistant coach.

The announcement of her appointment was made by head coach Kay James and athletic director Roland supervised the team's weight program and co-directed the school's summer basketball camp.

Calling it an area she very much enjoys, Lee also will be the recruiting coordinator at USM, an area head coach Kay James says is much in need of a full-time person.

"We'll have Joye recruiting throughout the southeast," said James.

"I'm sure she will be an outstanding representative of the University. She's a Lady Golden Eagle through and through, she worked hard when she played her, has been a quality assistant coach the past two years while proving that she is capable of recruiting with the best of them."

The 24-year-old Leetown native played at Hancock North Central High School where teams she was a part of went to the overall state tournament four straight years, winning state titles twice. She then spent four seasons with the Lady Eagles, compiling impressive stats, some of which are still in the record book.

She holds the single game record for most free throws attempted - 18, most free throws made - 14, most field goals attempted - 27, and has the best free throw percentage for a single season - 81.7 on 103 of 126 shootings.

Lee also is decidedly happy to be back at USM, saying, "I really look forward to working with Coach James. There's just no place like home, and I think it really is true that once you get Eagle Fever you never lose it. That certainly has been true in my case."

Lee sees nothing but success ahead for the Lady Eagles, saying, "Last season was something of a rebuilding year for Coach James and her team, but I've kept up with the program, know that there are some quality players on the squad and that the program should quickly be back up to the levels we all have come to expect."

In addition to her BS degree in business distributive education, Lee also has done work on a master's degree in business education.

JOYE NELL LEE

Dale, following approval by the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning.

The 1984 USM graduate has spent the past two seasons at Southwest Texas State in San Marcos where she was an assistant coach. She also served as recruiting coordinator, Page Murphy of BWYC with crew Chip Peterson and Paul Montjoy finished second.

The Bemis quarter finals was won by Michael DeMarcy with crew Sid Charbonet.

Torn Duffy of BWYC will sail in the Smythe semi-finals.

The Union's Area D includes yacht clubs in the Gulf Yachting Association from Panama City to Lake Charles.

JELLYFISH STINGS

BILOXI - Jellyfish possess a venom which causes a severe burning sensation.

Children can be stung not only by the living jellyfish floating in the water, but also by tentacles torn from the jellyfish or jellyfish washed up on the beach.

The venom is contained inside nettle cells or nematocysts which are capable of injecting the venom into the skin.

The sting may vary from mild to severe. The skin where the sting occurs may be red or have areas of raised wheals.

More rare are systemic symptoms such as vomiting. Very rare is the stopping of breathing and death.

The intensity of the symptoms may depend on how long the tentacles are in contact with the skin. Therefore, it is important to remove them as soon as possible.

Unfortunately, when the tentacles are removed, the nematocysts may remain behind on the skin.

If they are rubbed or contact fresh water, a spring-like mechanism will "fire" a needle into the skin and inject the cell's venom causing more pain and injury.

Thus, it is necessary to first soak the nematocysts in ordinary rubbing alcohol. This will denature the venom so it is no longer poisonous.

Then, the nematocysts can be carefully scraped off with a knife.

If the sting is bad, a doctor needs to see the child for further treatment such as antihistamines, steroids, antibiotics or a tetanus booster.

Award Honors Coaches Who Make Youth Sports The Best It Can Be

While it's often said that sports build character, amateur coaches with a win-at-all-costs attitude can unknowingly destroy character in many hopeful young athletes involved in sports during their critical, developmental years.

A national award program has been established to better ensure that participation in organized sports will be a positive learning experience for young softball and baseball players.

This summer, the Gatorade Youth Coach Awards will again honor volunteer youth coaches who stress fun, safety, sportsmanship and skill development before winning.

"By honoring volunteer youth coaches nationwide who make baseball a positive, educational experience for young people, other youth coaches will become more aware of the important role they play in the emotional and physical development of today's youth," said Bill Schmidt, director of sports marketing for The Quaker Oats Company, maker of Gatorade® Thirst Quencher. "In the long run, we hope to improve the quality of the sports experience for young people."

All volunteer youth baseball and softball coaches of players ages 5-16 are eligible for the award. Coaches can be nominated by parents, team members, fellow coaches, league administrators or fans.

Ten award recipients will be selected to receive the Youth Coach Awards commemorative plaque. One National Youth Coach of the Year will receive an expense-paid trip for two to the 1986 World Series. The Youth Coach Awards are endorsed by Major League Baseball's Professional Baseball Athletic Trainers Society (PBATS), and are conducted in cooperation with the National Youth Sports Coaches Association (NYSCA) and Pony Baseball, Inc.

"We wholeheartedly support the Awards," said Pony Baseball Commissioner Leo Trich, "because a win-at-all-costs mentality can be emotionally harmful for some less-skilled youngsters who never get a chance to play. We believe baseball is a game that should be enjoyed by every young person who has the desire to play."

PBATS president and head athletic trainer for the Boston Red Sox, Charlie Moss, points out that "Many coaches don't realize the potential physical harm of playing a kid too hard or too long. We stand behind the program because it's making coaches more conscious of necessary safety precautions."

This national award program, now in its third year, has begun to make an impact on youth leagues across the country.

"If the number of requests for nomination forms is any indication, parents and coaches are concerned about making sports fun for kids," said NYSCA President Fred Engh. "People truly want to recognize those coaches who improve their children's lives."

To obtain nomination forms, submit requests to The Gatorade Youth Coach Awards, 225 W. Ohio (#360), Chicago, IL 60610.

Nominations must be submitted by August 31, 1986.

Big money at stake in Talladega 500

TALLADEGA, ALA. — More than three-quarters of a million dollars will be on the line for the three races comprising Talladega 500 weekend July 26-27 at Alabama International Motor Speedway.

All three events, the International Race of Champions (IROC) and the Permatex 500k on Saturday, July 26, and the Talladega 500 on Sunday, July 27, have posted record purses.

Heading the list, of course, will be the 18th annual Talladega 500, with posted awards totaling $516,550, the first time that event has been worth more than half a million dollars.

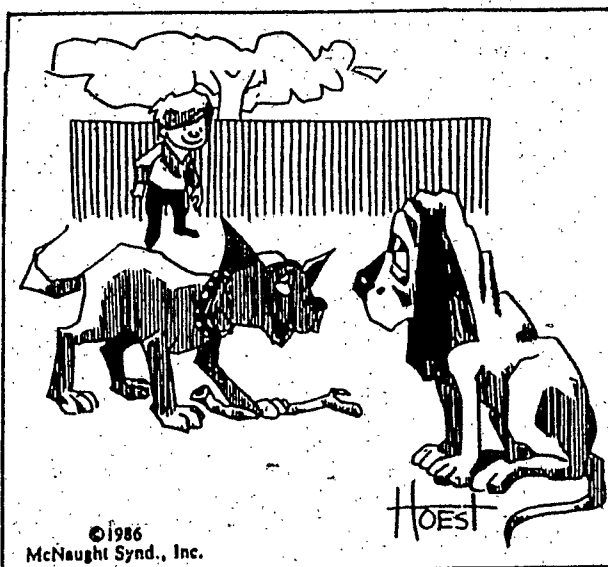

The IROC is part of a four-race series worth more than $75,000 to the dozen drivers, so the Talladega leg is worth more than $143,000. The Permatex 500k, the other half of Super Saturday, boasts a record purse for an ARCA race, more than $106,000.

"This is, by far, the most money that has ever been available to competitors during Talladega 500 race weekend," said AIMS General Manager Don Naman. "It almost makes me wish I was a driver, myself."

"The Talladega 500 purse was increased by more than $66,000, the IROC series increased its potential winnings by more than $100,000 overall, and the fine folks at Permatex have insured that theirs is the richest ARCA race ever," noted Naman.

Tickets for all events are now on sale at the AIMS ticket office, and Talladega 500 tickets are also available at participating Alabama Sears stores.

"Watch how I have him trained. When I bring the stick he knows how to throw it out again."

Challenge is the ultimate test of man

When the starting gun sounds at 3:00 P.M. EDT on Saturday, August 30, 1986, more than 50 intrepid, solo sailors will set out from Newport, Rhode Island to begin one of the most daunting and challenging sporting adventures known to man — The BOC Challenge 1986-1987, a single-handed, around-the-world yacht race.

The race, which spans three oceans and some 27,000 miles, pits man against the toughest elements of nature. The individuals frequently face hurricane-force winds, mountainous seas, fog, freezing rain, icebergs, and endless stretches of sea, where the closest landfall — and human contact — is thousands of miles away. This grueling marathon tests each competitor to the limits of his or her ability, both physically and mentally, over the nine-month-long journey.

The BOC Challenge 1986-1987 will make stops in Cape Town, South Africa, Sydney, Australia and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil before returning to Newport during spring of 1987. The first race, held during 1982-1983, was won by Frenchman Philippe Jeantot, shown fourth from left, who finished the course in 159 days, shattering the previous record by 10 days. The Challenge is sponsored by The BOC Group (formerly known as British Oxygen Corporation), a multi-national corporation whose principle businesses include industrial gases and health-care products and services.

The competitors in this year's race are from 12 countries around the world and come from all walks of life.

They include: two women; a stunt pilot; two physicians; one dentist; a cowboy; a mountain climber; two teachers; a musician; former members of the press; an artist; a well-known author; and a number of suc-

$100,000 will be presented, including $15,000 to the first place finisher in each class. The first unsponsored yacht to finish in each class will also receive a cash prize of $10,000.

Of the 17 starters in the 1982-1983 BOC Challenge, ten finished the course. Eleven of those starters are en-dent Ocean Challenge, the year-long program will be incorporated into the classrooms' curriculum, and will include learning topics such as geography, wind and ocean currents, navigation, global weather patterns and the lifestyles and cultures of the stopover ports.

The race is organized by The BOC Challenge 1986-1987 Race Committee with the assistance of the Rhode Island State Yachting Committee. For more information on The BOC Challenge 1986-1987, please contact BOC Race Headquarters, Goat Island Marina, Newport, RI, 02840.†

FIVE AND SIX—Members of the Dixie Youth League Five- and Six-Year-Old Division All Star Team, representing clubs in Kila, Necaise Crossing, Dedeaux, Diamondhead and West Harrison, include, kneeling from left, Brad DeWitt, Adam Ladner, Ashley Ladner, Desmond Ladner, Kimmey Ladner, Shawn Necaise; standing, Ryan Olsen, Kyle Shaw, Archie Pouncey,

cessful businessmen. Well over one-third of the entries in this year's race are from Americans, challenging the previous domination of long-distance, singlehanded adventure sailing by Europeans.

The competitors are divided into two classes, based upon boat length. Class I is for boats 50-60 feet in length, while Class II is for boats 40-50 feet in length. The winner in each class will be the boat with the fastest total elapsed time around the world.

Richard Giordano, chairman and chief executive officer of The BOC Group, said: "Everyone who finishes this 'Everest of sailing' is a winner." To reflect this sentiment, the Group will award identical trophies to each and every finisher of The Challenge. Cash prizes and additional trophies, valued in excess of U.S.

trans in this second race.

Race organizers will follow the solo sailors around the globe via the ARGOS satellite tracking system, which will be installed on each boat prior to race start. The satellite communications system will give race headquarters the position of each yacht continuously throughout the race.

A computer system will also be in place which will translate the raw ARGOS data into positions, speeds and distances covered, placings, and the distances of each yacht from the next port — all at the touch of a button.

In addition to the millions of people expected to follow The BOC race, hundreds of schools in the U.S. and abroad will participate in a unique educational program developed around The BOC Challenge. Called the Stu-

MAKE A TACKLE BOX BELT

By Mary B. Bowling

My husband's favorite pastime is fishing. And like most serious anglers, he has a huge tackle box crammed full of doodads designed to outwit his finned opponents. But until recently, when Bob fished on foot—meandering from spot to spot looking for "the big one"—his equipment was rarely within reach...because he'd left his clumsy tackle box sitting on a rock somewhere. (In fact, he claims to have spent more time running up and down the edges of streams and lakes looking for his misplaced tackle box than he did fishing!)

I finally solved the poor guy's problem by making him a customized angler's belt. Nowadays when Bob stalks bass or trout, he's got everything he needs right there around his waist—and both of his hands are free for fishing.

THE MAKINGS

Only a few inexpensive items are needed to fabricate a tackle box belt, and many of them may already be lying around your home somewhere just waiting to be put to good use. The main ingredient, of course, is a belt. Preferably a cloth belt. (You could use leather, but it's mighty hard to sew through.) You'll also need a one-piece plastic soap dish (the kind with a hinged lid), about 18" inches of inch-wide elastic, a 12" length of rawhide thong or strong cord, a scrap of sheepskin (optional), a stout sewing needle, some sturdy thread, and several plastic 35mm film canisters. (If you don't use 35mm film, ask your friends or the clerk at your local photo shop to save a few containers for you.)

Plan before you sew. Consider which items you want to carry and where they should be placed for comfort and accessibility. (Naturally, if you're making the belt for someone else, you should consult with that person about such things.) Hooks, sinkers, swivels, and small lures all fit nicely in the little cans. Flies can also be kept in the canisters—or hooked onto a scrap of sheepskin.

THE MAKING

Sew the elastic onto the belt in loops sized to hold the film cans snugly. Similar loops can be created to hold your favorite fishing tools. (Bob keeps his hook disgorging handy this way.) Worms, crawfish, grasshoppers, and other live baits are stored in the plastic soap dish: Punch air holes in the lid with a red-hot ice pick, and suspend the dish from the belt by the thong or cord.

SPORTS from the Pressbox

The Virginia Slims Championships will return to Madison Square Garden for a second time this year, November 17-23, to cap the season-long 1986 circuit. If this event even comes close to the first championship, which took place in March when 88,181 fans turned out, it will be some show.

Martina Navratilova was crowned world champion, defeating Hana Mandlikova, who the day before upset Chris Evert Lloyd in the semi-finals. Also of interest, Martina and Pam Shriver were finally beaten in the doubles semi-finals after winning it for five consecutive years. They were dethroned by Mandlikova and Wendy Turnbull who incidentally went to win the finals over Claudia Kilsch and Helena Sukova.

Most important, the Virginia Slims Championships were finally pushed to a four set—final. Mandlikova forced Martin beyond three sets which was the first time that has happened at a women's sanctioned match since 1901 when Elizabeth Moore defeated Myrtle McAteer at the U. S. Nationals.

What an exciting final that was. After two sets which looked more like an exhibition for Martina, Mandlikova came alive. With the tennis prowess which helped her upset Lloyd the day before, she broke service in the fourth game and maintained a decisive lead throughout the set. Mandlikova went on to win 6-2, 6-0, 3-6, 6-1.

The only real disappointment of the tournament occurred the last day when Chris Evert Lloyd was a no show for her third-place playoff against Steffi Graf. The day before when Evert lost to Mandlikova, she half-heartedly agreed to play the consolation match, but apparently that was before she had a chance to reflect on the day's loss. She claimed that she was mentally and physically exhausted, but not so much so that she couldn't attend the post-tournament party. This made it the second consecutive year that one of the semi-finalists refused to play the third place playoff. Last year it was Mandlikova who refused to play.

There will be no third place playoff this year at the Garden, nor will there be the presence of Chris Evert Lloyd. Fans who are eager to watch Lloyd play, whether it be in the final or third place playoff, will be disappointed.

KEEPING FIT

Summer can be a stressful time for many young men and women. Summer romances and bikini exposure on the beach produce an obsession with weight and bodily image. And for some, it is a look that is deliberately, sometimes fatally, being pursued through dieting, exercising and purging. School and health authorities see a greater incidence of the eating disorders anorexia nervosa and bulimia during this time of year.

At the Center for the Treatment of Eating Disorders in Livingston, NJ, something is being done to educate students about eating disorders. Students are given the opportunity to talk about peer pressure, parental pressure and how adolescents cope—or don't cope.

Eating disorders are very real and affect both males and females. The typical victim of anorexia and bulimia, however, is female, a perfectionist, talented, bright and an achiever. Some have never had a weight problem before; some have been overweight at some point and are terrified of becoming so again.

Bulimia is a condition that involves purging whatever is ingested. Many bulimics force themselves to regurgitate after gorging; some take laxatives in quantity. It is typical for bulimics to be secretive about their behavior, to deny or lie about the existence of the problem, or they may not even know they have a problem.

Anorexia and bulimia pose serious health risks and affect social and emotional well-being. The condition can easily become uncontrollable, and outside help is necessary. At the Center in Livingston, free-of-charge self-help group workshops are available. Also a non-profit Eating Disorders Hotline provides free information, counseling and referrals to callers. If you would like more information about anorexia and bulimia, write to The Center For the Treatment of Eating Disorders, 514 S. Livingston Ave. Livingston, NJ 07039. © 1986, McNaught Synd.

MAKE A TACKLE BOX BELT

By Mary B. Bowling

My husband's favorite pastime is fishing. And like most serious anglers, he has a huge tackle box crammed full of doodads designed to outwit his finned opponents. But until recently, when Bob fished on foot—meandering from spot to spot looking for "the big one"—his equipment was rarely within reach... because he'd left his clumsy tackle box sitting on a rock someplace. (In fact, he claims to have spent more time running up and down the edges of streams and lakes looking for his misplaced tackle box than he did fishing!)

I finally solved the poor guy's problem by making him a customized angler's belt. Nowadays when Bob stalks bass or trout, he's got everything he needs right there around his waist—and both of his hands are free for fishing.

THE MAKINGS

Only a few inexpensive items are needed to fabricate a tackle box belt, and many of them may already be lying around your home somewhere just waiting to be put to good use. The main ingredient, of course, is a belt. Preferably a cloth belt. (You could use leather, but it's mighty hard to sew through.) You'll also need a one-piece plastic soap dish (the kind with a hinged lid), about 18" inches of inch-wide elastic, a 12" length of rawhide thong or strong cord; a scrap of sheepskin (optional), a stout sewing needle, some sturdy thread, and several plastic 35mm film canisters. (If you don't use 35mm film, ask your friends or the clerk at your local photo shop to save a few containers for you.)

Plan before you sew. Consider which items you want to carry and where they should be placed for comfort and accessibility. (Naturally, if you're making the belt for someone else, you should consult with that person about such things.) Hooks, sinkers, swivels, and small lures all fit nicely in the little cans. Flies can also be kept in the canisters—or hooked onto a scrap of sheepskin.

THE MAKING

Sew the elastic onto the belt in loops sized to hold the film cans snugly. Similar loops can be created to hold your favorite fishing tools. (Bob keeps his hook disgorgers handy this way.) Worms, crawfish, grasshoppers, and other live baits are stored in the plastic soap dish; Punch air holes in the lid with a red-hot ice pick, and suspend the dish from the belt by the thong or cord.

SPORTS from the Pressbox

The Virginia Slims Championships will return to Madison Square Garden for a second time this year, November 17-23, to cap the season-long 1986 circuit. If this event even comes close to the first championship, which took place in March when 88,181 fans turned out, it will be some show.

Martina Navratilova was crowned world champion, defeating Hana Mandlikova, who the day before upset Chris Evert Lloyd in the semi-finals. Also of interest, Martina and Pam Shriver were finally beaten in the doubles semi-finals after winning it for five consecutive years. They were dethroned by Mandlikova and Wendy Turnbull who incidentally went to win the finals over Claudia Kilsch and Helena Sukova.

Most important, the Virginia Slims Championships were finally pushed to a four set final. Mandlikova forced Martin beyond three sets which was the first time that has happened at a women's sanctioned match since 1901 when Elizabeth Moore defeated Myrtle McAteer at the U. S. Nationals.

What an exciting final that was. After two sets which looked more like an exhibition for Martina, Mandlikova came alive. With the tennis prowess which helped her upset Lloyd the day before, she broke service in the fourth game and maintained a decisive lead throughout the set. Mandlikova went on to win 6-2, 6-0, 3-6, 6-1.

The only real disappointment of the tournament occurred the last day when Chris Evert Lloyd was a no show for her third-place playoff against Steffi Graf. The day before when Evert lost to Mandlikova, she half-heartedly agreed to play the consolation match, but apparently that was before she had a chance to reflect on the day's loss. She claimed that she was mentally and physically exhausted, but not so much so that she couldn't attend the post-tournament party. This made it the second consecutive year that one of the semi-finalists refused to play the third place playoff. Last year it was Mandlikova who refused to play.

There will be no third place playoff this year at the Garden, nor will there be the presence of Chris Evert Lloyd. Fans who are eager to watch Lloyd play, whether it be in the final or third place playoff, will be disappointed.

Answer to Puzzle:

KEEPING FIT

Summer can be a stressful time for many young men and women. Summer romances and bikini exposure on the beach produce an obsession with weight and bodily image. And for some, it is a look that is deliberately, sometimes fatally, being pursued through dieting, exercising and purging. School and health authorities see a greater incidence of the eating disorders anorexia nervosa and bulimia during this time of year.

At the Center for the Treatment of Eating Disorders in Livingston, NJ, something is being done to educate students about eating disorders. Students are given the opportunity to talk about peer pressure, parental pressure and how adolescents cope — or don't cope.

Eating disorders are very real and affect both males and females. The typical victim of anorexia and bulimia, however, is female, a perfectionist, talented, bright and an achiever. Some have never had a weight problem before; some have been overweight at some point and are terrified of becoming so again.

Bulimia is a condition that involves purging whatever is ingested. Many bulimics force themselves to regurgitate after gorging; some take laxatives in quantity. It is typical for bulimics to be secretive about their behavior, to deny or lie about the existence of the problem, or they may not even know they have a problem.

Anorexia and bulimia pose serious health risks and affect social and emotional well-being. The condition can easily become uncontrollable, and outside help is necessary. At the Center in Livingston, free-of-charge self-help group workshops are available. Also a non-profit Eating Disorders Hotline provides free information, counseling and referrals to callers. If you would like more information about anorexia and bulimia, write to The Center for the Treatment of Eating Disorders, 514 S. Livingston Ave. Livingston, NJ 07039. © 1986, McNaught Synd.

NERVE IMPULSES

When we mention nerve impulses, realization abounds. Simply because no one has seen them. Thus, a realistic picture is not available to our minds. Electrical current is often pictured to be like impulses because this current operates so many different appliances, just like nerve impulses operate all body functions and parts. However, we know that nerve impulses are not electrical, but rather the intelligent internal life currents of the body. They are responsible for all constructive processes connected in body health and life. In fact, strictly from a scientific standpoint, upon death, all the organs and even the blood is still present, but we can no longer detect the nerve impulse. This has lead our profession into the specialized technology of detecting life currents in the live body, and their interruption and helping the sick to recover and prolong life.

USM absorbing $3.1 million cut

HATTIESBURG—University of Southern Mississippi president Aubrey Lucas says USM will absorb a 9.3 percent budget cut for the new fiscal year without terminating personnel.

Lucas told a special convocation of faculty and staff June 19 the university will make up a $3.1 million shortfall in the new budget by deleting unfilled positions, moving people from 12 to nine-month contracts, hiking student tuition by $200 a year, and taking several other actions designed to save money or generate new dollars.

"The only salaries to be cut were those of persons whose responsibilities were changed. No person has been terminated from the university to balance this budget," said Lucas, noting a total of 30 positions had been eliminated.

The president said the budget reduction for the fiscal year that starts July 1 apparently had not resulted in a bigger than normal turnover of faculty and staff, but he predicted key personnel losses would "accelerate" unless the Legislature finds a way to adequately fund higher education.

"I don't see a great exodus (of faculty and staff) now," he added, "but that situation cannot be maintained. We've got to have some help."

Lucas said some 57 percent of USM's $79 million budget next year would be generated by the university, with the remaining 43 percent coming from state appropriations.

Lucas said USM will make up the $3.1 million budget shortfall in the new budget, which was approved earlier in the day by the state College Board, this way:

—$3.1 million to be generated from a $200 per year increase in student tuition beginning in the fall;

—$636,000 in savings by deleting unfilled positions and moving people from 12 to nine-month contracts, including some $313,000 by eliminating administrative jobs;

—discontinuing a $400,000 subsidy to the athletic department, a move required by the College Board;

—$35,200 in savings by doing away with subsidies to the USM Post Office and the USM golf course;

—$30,000 by diverting student fees from USM health care operations to the general fund;

—$30,000 deleted from the Division of Lifelong Learning extension program;

—$200,000 in supply and expense budget reductions, excluding wages;

—$300,000 to be pumped into the budget by USM Auxiliary Services, which operate on campus as self-supporting businesses.

Narcotics News

Donald Butler
Director
Bureau of Narcotics

Q. Is it true that there is a law allowing the Bureau of Narcotics to seize a person's land? What if they knew nothing about drugs being grown or used on the land?

(C.L. Flora)
A. Yes. In 1965, the Mississippi forfeiture law was amended to allow seizure and forfeiture of everything of value, including land, which is used or intended to be used to facilitate the violation of our drug laws. Thus land on which marijuana is grown would be forfeitable, as would land or other real property which is used in violation of the drug laws.

The forfeiture laws protect innocent owners of seized property, so if an owner did not know the marijuana was being grown, or that his land was otherwise being used in violation of the drug laws, the owner would not lose his land.

Q. Will long-term use of marijuana make my husband sterile? Will marijuana make it difficult for me to get pregnant? I haven't been able to get pregnant in over five years and I want another child very much.

(Anonymous)
A. Studies show that men who are marijuana users have lower levels of testosterone than non-users and that the sperm count in young adult males diminishes as marijuana use increases.

As for women smoking marijuana, it can affect the menstrual cycle. Studies suggest that regular marijuana use may reduce fertility in women.

Furthermore, marijuana smoking mothers run a higher risk of their baby being born with birth defects.

The Mississippi State of Mind

The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not of either organization.

By Robert L. Alotta, PhD
Communications Department
Mississippi State University

The future of higher education in Mississippi hangs in the balance for another year.

The state legislature, in a masterful stroke, decided it didn't have enough time/information to address the issue of closing down two universities, a dental school, a vet school; reducing two universities to college status; and getting rid of satellite campuses!

This decision—or lack of one—may have given the legislature time to think. It did not address the problem.

And the fiscal problems of the State of Mississippi can be solved only after the disease has been properly identified. Merit-based pay is not the proper medication.

What is the problem? Simply stated, it is the Mississippi State of Mind, that archaic approach to life in general: an inability to confront issues, research the causes, and try to find solutions.

In the first place, Mississippians view colleges and universities as the rightful place for high school graduates, regardless of whether they can read or write. The minimal scores required for admission point this out.

And college, unfortunately, is not for everyone. A college diploma is worthless if a student cannot master all the subject matter, and absorb it.

To foster a sense of false hope in young people—to even suggest to them that a piece of sheepskin from one of the eight state universities will guarantee them a position in the local marketplace—is criminal.

Too many students enter college with the wrong equipment. Some are academically unprepared and emotionally immature. Some even view the campus as the fitting place to find a husband or wife.

A young lady came to me the other day and asked to be excused from an examination—because her sorority was having "rush" that week and she'd be too tired to take the test. Exhausted or not, she took it. Some recent graduates have taken jobs, only to quit several months later—because work would interfere with marriage. Their departure left a sour taste in certain employers' minds.

This attitude on the part of students is not fostered in the academic community, especially by those of us who attempt to teach the practical aspects of business.

The attitude, I believe, is fostered by that Mississippi State of Mind.

Parents, from the day a child is born, harp on the fact that a woman's place is in the home. To be elsewhere would be a perversion of femininity.

If parents believe that a college education prepares women for marriage alone, perhaps they should think about the costs of tuition, room and board, clothing, sports car, etc., and give the child the money as a dowry—just like in the good old days.

To some parents, having a child in college is a status symbol, regardless of the fact that the facade might obscure pending bankruptcy.

The problem with education in Mississippi begins in the home. But, as in most areas where parents have abdicated their responsibilities and allowed outside influences to take the place of the mother and father, the problem has been exacerbated by a continued lack of direction from the governing body of the state's universities—the Board of Trustees.

The Board of Trustees has sat back and watched scholarships and financial benefits being showered on athletes in the "revenue-producing" sports. Local newspapers herald the "signing" of freshman players in terms not unlike those announcing contract negotiations with professional teams.

To some, athletic prowess is viewed as a recruiting inducement. Recruiting for whom? Other athletes?

The University of Pennsylvania stopped providing scholarships to athletes a number of years ago. All members of its football team pay their own tuition, yet Penn has had better seasons than Mississippi's "play for pay" teams.

These Mississippi teams demonstrate their considerable prowess only with mounting deficits. When was the last time a state university filled a stadium during a football season?

Does anyone really believe that any high school students in his or her right mind makes a decision on a college solely on the basis of a football, basketball or baseball team?

If there that were true, based on the win columns in Mississippi, students would be flocking to Mississippi Valley.

The Mississippi State of Mind focuses a great deal of attention on sports and the construction of bigger and better arenas in which to play. Doesn't anyone realize there is only so much money for education in the state budget?

And as the budget crunches, money is siphoned off to keep the bureaucracy in Jackson in business.

Where else can the institutions look for additional revenues? Local towns and cities? They'd better look elsewhere because the municipalities are involved, in building new baseball parks, renovating and expanding football stadiums.

The alumni?

There is just so much blood that an alumna or alumnus is willing to give for dear old alma mater. After a point, people might like to forget the college of their youth.

A friend who calls himself a dedicated alumnus thinks that the games are a time for fellowship, when fellow graduates can get together to talk about the good old days.

When was the last time he went to a game?

He couldn't remember.

At a recent faculty/staff meeting, State President Donald W. Zacharias said that the College of Veterinary Medicine at State had saved the catfish industry millions of dollars; had saved the cattle industry in the state countless sums.

If that is the case, and I don't doubt it, why aren't the affected industries financially assisting the vet school?

Industry has a great stake in the future of Mississippi's universities. Where can they go for research? From where will the supply of new employees emanate?

For higher education to survive in Mississippi, business must take a positive stance. Business must assist the colleges and universities in their pursuit of excellence by acknowledging research accomplishments with financial aid, by offering scholarships to children of employees, by advising university administrators on where career opportunities exist (it doesn't help to flood the market with engineering graduates, when there are no openings in the field), and by visiting campuses and interviewing Mississippi students on a regular basis.

Business should also set the record straight about "leadership" versus competition. The Board of Trustees operates under the prehistoric notion that competition among academic programs leads to duplication of effort.

This, business can assure them, is not the case. If it were, Sack and Save would not open a store in a city or town where Kroger operates.

Many shopping malls have J. C. Penney and Sears, competing firms, as bookends. Competition spurs on excellence—"leadership," on the other hand, diminishes creativity, ambition and drive. It denies faculty members the opportunity to innovate, develop attractive programs, and draw students to their school.

For some, leadership brings on laziness and inertia.

Institutions of higher learning in the State of Mississippi will die unless something is done—and done quickly, with forethought and planning. Mississippi cannot afford eight universities.

The title "university" carries with it a connotation that does not exist in any of our schools.

Perhaps the eight disparate institutions should be merged into one university system, similar to the models of California, New York, or Alabama.

Perhaps regional universities are the answer. Perhaps some universities should be turned into two-year preparatory colleges; others into two-year professional schools.

The solution to the problem, however, is not found in spur-of-the-moment decisions or in tear-stained old school ties. The patient is dying; remedies must be found.

There is nothing sacred 'or magical about the number eight. There is nothing wrong with progress. Times change, and people change with those times.

There is nothing wrong with change. What is wrong is Mississippi's State of Mind...that clings to the status quo.

Coast Guard license Training available at Houma facility

Help in studying for the various Coast Guard license examinations is provided between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays at the Louisiana Marine & Petroleum Institute on Dickson Road in Houma.

Once registered, LaMPI's Coast Guard licensed instructors are available to provide help during a person's "off" time.

This allows a person working 7 and 7 to prepare for the exam.

All Coast Guard requirements must be met before the Coast Guard examinations are taken. These examinations are scheduled monthly.

Special help can be given in celestial navigation and for a license as master, mate, towing operator, ocean operator, inland operator, engineer, or certificates as able seaman, lifeboatman, tankerman, oiler, or FCC radiotelephone operator.

First aid and CPR certificates can also be obtained by attending classes at LaMPI.

With the installation of a Racal 9000 Marine Navigation Simulator, LaMPI can now provide the Coast Guard required training for both the original and renewal "Radar Observer" certificate.

MILLSAPS GRADUATE—Tereau Pearson, daughter of Gaylene Whitfield of Bay St. Louis and the late Wayne Pearson, and stepdaughter of the late Felton (Buddy) Whitfield, was graduated recently from Millsaps College with a bachelor's degree in chemistry and biology and minor in art. She was a member of Phi Mu sorority and science honoraries and was active in varsity soccer and cheerleading. Pearson will attend Washington University School of Dental Medicine in St. Louis, Mo. in the fall. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Rena Pearson of Carriere and the late Narvel Pearson, and Mr. and Mrs. Bilbo Skipper of Picayune.

RAGTIME OPERA

Scott Joplin's hand-clapping, foot-stomping ragtime opera "Treemonisha" will be broadcast at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, June 26, on Mississippi ETV as part of the "America's Musical Theater" series.

Carmen Balthrop, who starred in Mississippi ETV's "A Bayou Legend," stars as Treemonisha. The opera is a joyous 90-minute parable about a progressive-minded young woman who leads her community away from superstition and fear and toward education and enlightenment.

The 1981 production by the Houston Grand Opera Company was critically acclaimed as a respectful restoration of Joplin's original 1907 opera.

We had our cataract surgery with confidence...

no cost to us!

Bill and I are on a fixed income, so we had put off important cataract surgery. Then we learned Koskan Eye Clinic performs cataract surgery with implantation of intraocular lens at no cost to patients who have met their Medicare Part B deductible (or $75.00). What a blessing! At our age, we didn't want to lose sight of all the beautiful things in our lives!
